1. PURA FÉ AND THE MUSICAL TRADITIONS OF THE BLACK, WHITE, AND NATIVE SOUTHS

PRESIDING: James C. Cobb, University of Georgia

Pura Fé and Secret Histories in “Red, Black on Blues”

John Troutman, University of Louisiana at Lafayette

Musical Performance by Pura Fé

Pura Fé is an internationally acclaimed singer, songwriter, and poet who combines traditional Native American music with more contemporary sounds and forms. A descendant of Tuscarora Indians, she has been influential in reviving dying Native musical instruments and styles that once characterized such music in eastern North Carolina’s Native communities and has worked with Native youth in Robeson County, N.C., in introducing those traditions to new generations. Historian John Troutman, author of Indian Blues: American Indians and the Politics of Music, 1879-1934 (2009) will discuss her distinctive contributions to Native American music, to be followed by a performance by Pura Fé herself.

The Baltimore Local Arrangements Committee will sponsor a reception in the Promenade outside of the Liberty Ballroom immediately following the performance.
